A Brakeman Badly Hart.

Late Thursday alternoon, John Wait, a fireman on an engine hauling a freight train over the Hempfield road, fell upon the rear part of the tender, where he had gone for some tools, just as the train was crossing the National road at West Alexander. One leg was broken by the fall and the other severely injured, and he also sustained a number of cuts and bruises. The afternoon passenger train, leaving here at 5:29 o'clock, picked up the wounded man and carried him to his home at Finleyville.

Dobbins and Burkett Te-night.

To-night's race at the Alhambra rink between Dobbins, of Martin's Ferry, and Burkett, of this city, will probably attract a very large crowd. It will be remembered that about three weeks ago there was a three mile race, mile heats, between these two skatorial celebrities at the Alhambra, that proved to be one of the most exciting contests on the rollers that ever took place in this city or country. Dobbins took the first heat by a very short distance. Burkett took the second and the third. In the third Dobbins took the lead and held it until on the last lap, when after a hard struggle Burkett passed him, causing the wildest excitement ever seen in a rink. Dobbins, it appears, is not satisfied, and so it is that the race is to be repeated.

houghts and her language were allie of high order.

Miss Jennie Allen wrote of "Gateways," figuratively considered, and her essay a showed careful study of the subject and honest, thoughtful work in preparing her paper. She was followed by Harry V. Arkle with an original oration exceeding ly creditable in sentiment and form, and delivered with much force. Miss Lizzie J. Bickerton read a thoughtful, pleasing essay on "Flaws in Diamonds," making the most of the growding suggestions of the topic. All three of these performances in every way sustained the reputation of the schools.

Two Fine Declarations.

Erren E. Bowman, of Ritchie school, and Miss Nora Bowman, presumably his sister, evinced elecutionary talent and training of a high order, giving Whittier's "Barbara Fritchie" and Halleck's "American Plag," respectively, two sterling old

"Ourlosity" was the topic of Aliss Adies of Pandora's box, and gave it a modern application. Jennie A. Cilles's theme was Thrift," and she considered it in a practical and pertinent veln. Both essays were reditable in composition and satisfactorily delivered. It was exceedingly hard for syoung girl to make her voice andible in it is a practive to the street of the street with Miss Rosa C. Collier, daughter of President Collier, of the Board of Edigastion. Her essaywas on "Profit and Loss," and it was a production of nuneually high character, original in idea, tersely put, and all was a production of nuneually high character, original in idea, tersely put, and logical in its conclusions.

Charles G. Crago, son of Principal Grago, of the Ritchie school, delivered a schoi-any oration on "Free Mannoon, his delivery was well in keeping with the style of his discourse. Miss Laura W. Ford recited in a sparkling, delightful way a humorous selection, "Reverses in Church," Her voice was clear and andible all over the hall, and her stage presume placetic.

THE CYNOSURE OF ALL EVES.

After a selection by the orchestra, Miss Annis P. Gardner, the one young lady representative of the colored school, was announced. Her essay was on "Searching for Pearls." There was a ripple of applause when she appeared. Considering the embarrassing distinction of her position, she must be admitted to have acquitted herself creditably in an especial degree. She showed no signs of embarrassment, read andibly, and bore herself with noticeable case and grace. She is a comely lass, with a bright, intelligent face and regular features, and was simply and tastefully dressed in white. There was no reason to single her out from her classmates except that her name appeared among Pot. Jones graduates, and that a member of the Board of Education had the bad taste to agitate the question of the propriety of separating the colored pupils from the others on this occasion. The unusually hearty applause and the apparent signs of triumph all over the andience when Miss Gardner acquitted herself so nobly were a stinging rebuke to this agitator, if he was present.

Miss Sallie Hanly's essay was on hooly were as a supersent.

Miss Madge L. Johnson was bold enough to essay the rendition of Rosetti's "Royal Pringees," probably as diffiguit a selection to render adequately as can be found in the English language. The next two essays were badly interrupted by passing freight trains on the Hempfield. This was the one interference. Hempfield. This was the one interference with the success of the entrainment that had been auticipated. It was as bad, but not as constant as had been feared. The first essay, by Miss Emma Klein, was a happy hit at the sameness of the usual run of topics for commencement essays. The geoond was by Miss May C. Kraft, her theme being "Our Flower Garden." It was pleasing in matter and manner. "Chains" was the fruitful theme of Edward F. Kusrner's original oration. He illustrated his ideas by notable cases in history. His delivery was good.
